Henry Watterson gets in some choice and vigorous Louisville words in his article in the January number of the North American Review, and uses language entirely different from the talented man who used to edit the Courier-Journal. Mr. Watterson is nothing if not original—even in his attack on Hon. Samuel J. Randall.

A story is printed in some papers that Alan Arthur, the President's son, undertook to take Washington the other night, in company with a college chum, and that he came very near being taken in by a policeman, whose kind advice "to go home," was resented with a demand for "his number and a threat from Alan that he would have his head and buttons the next morning at 9 o'clock. There is too much exactness in time and improbability in the circumstances to give the story the shadow of truth. If young Mr. Arthur takes after his father he is too much of a gentleman to have played the part he is charged with.

It is not to be wondered at that the verdict rendered in the Schenck case in the Circuit Court yesterday has caused surprise and adverse criticism. The indignation of the people at this trifling with justice, this child's play with the most vital interests of the public, is altogether just and reasonable.

Guenther Schenck entered the place of business of Dr. Schuchardt on the evening of March 19, 1883, with the intention of taking Dr. Schuchardt's life, and he carried out his intention. There is probably not a man, outside of the jurors, who rendered this verdict yesterday, who heard the evidence, or who is otherwise familiar with the facts in the case, who is not convinced that the killing of Dr. Schuchardt was a deliberate murder if Guenther Schenck was sane and in his right mind when he committed the deed. If he was insane or of unsound mind, he was neither morally nor legally guilty of any crime.

When Schenck was convicted of wilful murder and sentenced to imprisonment for life, outraged justice was vindicated, and there was no complaint, though many people thought nothing but death was a condign penalty for so cold blooded and atrocious a murder. The annulling of that judgment was to be regretted, and the trivial penalty affixed by the jury yesterday ought to arouse indignation. If Schenck had been acquitted, it would have been otherwise. But if he was not an innocent man, he was a wilful murderer. The jury has either set justice at naught or pronounced an innocent and irresponsible man guilty of a crime.

We do not mean to be understood that the jury was alone to blame. There were weak points in the conduct of the case, which could have been, and ought to have been, presented to the jury in such a way that there could be no excuse for hesitation. But the jury cannot be held blameless. Such verdicts do harm.

AN AUSTRIAN BANKER.

Default and a Run on the Bank Results.

His Country Suffered.

VIENNA, Dec. 19.—Orders have been telegraphed throughout Europe for the arrest of Lucas Janer, the defaulting and absconding Director of Securities of the department of the Lower Austrian Discount Bank. Liberal rewards are offered for the apprehension of the culprit. Numerous bonds signed by Heinrich Kuffler, broker, suspected of complicity in Janer's cash box. These bonds represent large sums of money paid to Kuffler out of the funds belonging to the Discount Bank.

The directors of the bank have raised ten million florins, so as to be able to meet the run on the bank. The bank is honoring all demands without regard to the stipulated date when payment is due. The municipal authorities have notified that the city will withdraw its deposit of $1,500,000 florins. The bank is receiving many other notices of withdrawal of deposits.

A rumor is afloat that Janer's body has been found near Klasterenberg. Janer shot himself at the village of Kierling, a short distance west of this city. Only twenty-four florins were found on his body.

Not Anxious for Annexation.

TORONTO, Dec. 19.—In a speech last night, Sir John Macdonald, appeared to favor an Imperial alliance between England, Canada and Australia, with Canada reserving the full right to manage her own affairs, but that the alliance be a sort of police to keep the peace of the world and to league together for offence or defence in time of danger. Such a confederacy would be the most powerful in the world. He was opposed to independence. We would not keep it up. As for annexation, we would be lost in a neighboring union, whereas, it was only by being more than one power in North America, by competition in Government, that we could prevent the continent becoming like China.

"Yes, He Will."

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—The Pall Mall Gazette today states that it is rumored that the Rev. Henry Ward Beecher will succeed Mr. James Russell Lowell as United States Minister to the Court of St. James.

THE ASYLUM FIRE.

IN THE CITY OF BROOKLYN.

In Which a Number of Orphans and Adults Perished—The Finding of the Charred Remains—Michigan Poor House Totally Destroyed by Fire.

New York, Dec. 19.—The Brooklyn Eagle's extra states the fire marshal reports that twelve bodies were found up to 8 o'clock this morning among the ruins of the burned St. John's Home for Children. The workmen are still searching among the debris. The utmost excitement prevails in the vicinity of the asylum. The bodies found were so charred and blackened that identification is almost impossible. It is believed the most of the children who perished were in the ill-fated Sister Joseph's ward. The men engaged in excavating the ruins of the laundry found the remains of nine boys and two grown persons. Who the adults are has not been ascertained yet. The sisters are unwilling to be interviewed, but it is plain to be seen that the list of the inmates rescued does not come up to the full number. This is explained by the statement that the children may have been cared for in private houses and will turn up. The fact is that last night only one child was admitted to be missing, and this morning one dozen bodies were found. These facts tell their own ghastly story with a positiveness that is appalling.

MORE BODIES FOUND.

The blackened walls and smoking ruins is all that remained this morning of St. John's home or the male Catholic orphan asylum which burned last night. Crowds of spectators gathered there to-day to witness the firemen and police digging in the ruins.

The Sisters in charge of the asylum were of the opinion last night that all the children had been got out of the building, but persons who were on the outside, assisted in helping the little ones to escape, asserted there were many lives lost. They said they saw little ones in the room on the third floor over the laundry when the flames made their way to it, and they knew that the avenue of escape had been cut off. A few boys and grown persons are also believed to have perished. The assertion of these people are correct, for this morning the diggers came on the charred remains of a little huddled together just before the fire broke out. They were still in the dormitory directly over the laundry where sixty sick boys. It is not known whether all were saved. At a later hour this morning three more bodies were discovered near where the main building is located. Some of the bodies looked like those of adults. Shortly after 9 o'clock two more bodies were found burned to a crisp, their identity destroyed. Children are scattered all over the city and until collected it will not be possible to identify the bodies of those who perished. The police found many orphans on the streets, half frozen, and took them to the station house. Citizens also took charge of some of them and it will probably be a day or two before they will be collected together again.

NO PROTECTION AGAINST FIRE.

Brooklyn's latest horror is another evidence of the sad truth that no amount of good intention can atone for lack of proper precaution and vigilance. Hundreds of children in the asylum were tenderly protected against all harm except that which could have been most easily guarded against—fire. There was a very large yard hydrant in the yard with four butts, but there was no hose in the building, and no fire engine near the building, and no alarm system. The fire broke out in the laundry, and the flames spread rapidly, and the young men of the neighborhood who saw the fire had to burn upon the gates with a ramming iron before they could get in. Chief Engineer Nevins says that the laundry was full of clothes, and the flames were spreading rapidly. Michigan Poor House Burned.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—The Lapeer County Poor House burned last night at 10 o'clock. Thirty-seven inmates were turned out in their night clothes. Only one insane woman, named Bertha Rockwell, dashed back into the building and was burned to death, only the bones remaining to show where she perished. Another woman had run two miles through the deep snow before she could be rescued. She was badly frozen but not mortally injured. The thermometer at the time was below zero. The building, furniture, clothes and stock of provisions were burned. Loss to county over $6,000. The inmates are scattered among the farmers.

Big Oil Fire.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 19.—While the employees of Fisher Bros. were thawing out the water line the oil which had escaped from their No. 8 well ignited setting fire to the stock tanks containing 7,000 barrels of oil. The fiery fluid ran down the hillside setting fire to Armstrong No. 3, disabling it so that drilling cannot be resumed for several weeks. Lappe No. 1 was also badly scorched. Thorn creek bridge and a machine shop nearby were destroyed. Fisher No. 8 is flowing 75 barrels an hour and still burning. No accurate estimate can be given, but the loss will reach at least $50,000. Fisher Brothers being the heaviest losers.

Submerged by a Charcoal Fire.

CANTON, O., Dec. 19.—Vincenza Migliorini, Giuseppe Ferrioli and Francesco Casio, three Italians, partners in a peanut stand, went to sleep last night in a close room heated by a charcoal fire built in a peanut roaster. Ferrioli, who slept on the floor, and was found dead this morning. The other two slept in the bed and were almost suffocated by the gas generated, for which there was no vent. Migliorini is now very sick but out of danger. The latter woke early this morning and was barely able to call assistance.

Will Demand a Reduction.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—A conference of the steel workers and manufacturers, to fix wages for the ensuing year, will be held January 1st or as soon thereafter as possible. It is not known what the manufacturers will do as they are very reticent, but it is the general belief that if prospects there are no better than at present they will demand a reduction.

Blast at Stamps.

BRIDGEPORT, Ct., Dec. 19.—An explosion in a small building in the yard of the Metallic Cartridge Company, blew Peter Burns, an employee, into atoms and the building to splinters. It is supposed he dropped a pan of kerosene, or kerosene lamp, and the flames leaped on the building. Two minutes before the explosion.

If you are in doubt what to buy your friend for a holiday present, settle the matter by getting one of these elegant Christmas cards at Stanton & Day's book store.

AN ASSASSIN'S MOTTO.

"Be Ye Faithful Even Unto Death"—Holmes' Bearing Before His Judges.

LEICESTER, Dec. 19.—The most remarkable feature of the trial of the eight Attarchists, for the attempt to kill the Emperor and others at Niederwald, is that each one of the prisoners with the exception of Reinhardt, tries to put the burden of blame on somebody besides himself. Reinhardt, indeed, distinguishes himself from his companions by the greater manliness of spirit which he manifests. He has the courage of his opinions, and tried rather to shield his accomplices than to roll off upon their shoulders the blame which he himself could bear. He is a man of much force of character, of great kindness of heart, and is remarkably gentle towards women and children. In concluding his defense yesterday Reinhardt said he knew that he risked his own life. But if he died, he died as a martyr, in obedience to the scriptural command: "Be ye faithful even unto death." The public prosecutor demanded that Reinhardt be held in custody for a fresh charge, in order to form the basis for a fresh charge against him for inciting to murder. To this charge Reinhardt was asked whether he pleaded guilty or not guilty. Drawing himself up to his full height, the man answered: "I have nothing further to say. Deal with me as you please."

The question of capital punishment in the cases of Kuechler and Rupsch hangs upon the proof of the ignition of the fuse, and its extinction without their intervention. The evidence for the defense was that at the time he gave the money to Rupsch. He has the best chance of acquittal.

Schiebeck, of Elberfeld, deposed that Reinhardt boasted that he would do a deed that would make all Germany talk of him. He was brought to this place where his injuries were attended to, but did not survive long. He was about 30 years of age and unmarried. The remains were taken to his home near Cornwallis by the Odd Fellows, of which order he was a member.

Those remains of Kuechler, hangedman of the Third division, while switching cars in the yard here this afternoon, had his foot caught between two rails and badly crushed by the wheels of the car passing over it.

Nixon, another brakeman in the same crew, had his leg sprained and a switch about the knee by striking against a switch.

TRACK WALKER KILLED.

ANOTHER FATAL ACCIDENT ON THE B. & O. RAILROAD.

Last night John Hopkins, a track walker on the B. & O. railroad, aged about 28 years, and a resident of Manassas, was going east on train No. 3, when, just after the train left Manassas he slipped from the platform of a coach and fell between the ladies' car and the sleeper. He was dragged over the ties for some distance, and every bone in his body was broken and his neck was snapped. He was dead, and presented scarcely a vestige of resemblance to a man when found.

KILLED FOR HIS MONEY.

A Farmer Shot Down and His Valuables Carried Off.

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 19.—Passengers on last evening's train report a horrible murder four miles north of Hazlehurst, Miss., Wednesday night. William Somerville, an old bachelor, living with his widowed sister, was called to the door about midnight, and as he opened the door was shot down, falling dead on the floor. The assassin was three negroes, who threatened to kill the old lady, but she begged them to take what they wanted and spare her life. They took a trunk belonging to Mr. Somerville, which contained about $2,000, and escaped. The negroes have been arrested near Hazlehurst on suspicion, with strong circumstantial evidence against them. The document runs high in the vicinity, and if the men cannot be proved guilty they will be lynched. Somerville was one of the most respected citizens in the county.

Silver Found Near Bellair.

It is stated that Messrs. Rockerhausen and Hines, coal operators just south of Bellair have made a rich find on the farm of the first named gentleman near that city. A clay has been discovered that is supposed to contain a paying quantity of silver, and a sample has been sent to an assayer for examination. The Independent says: Of course, nothing definite can be said of the real worth of the find until the verdict of the assayer is known; and as for locating the find definitely it can not be done, for to do so would be to tell the location of the find to the lucky gentlemen, if the find is rich, are very rich.

RIVER RUPPES.

Stage of the Water and Movements of the River.

The river fell several inches yesterday at this point. The levee marks last evening indicated a depth in the channel of 8 feet 9 inches. Business was about suspended owing to the heavy ice with which the river was filled. The ice came from the Monongahela and Allegheny and from all the Ohio's tributaries between here and Pittsburgh. Unless there is a very decided moderation in the weather, to-day will see navigation almost entirely suspended. Reports from above are to the effect that the river is falling at all points and the weather is very cold.

The W. N. Chanter is due down this morning.

On route for Charleston and other points on the Kanawha, but the ice may interfere with her.

The St. Lawrence passed up yesterday morning with a good trip. She had been having some trouble with the ice and her officers thought it doubtful whether she would leave Pittsburgh to-day.

There was a disappointed woman at Moundsville yesterday morning when she saw the St. Lawrence passing up without stopping. Mrs. Joe Alexander wanted to join her husband, one of the boat's clever pilots, and make the round trip to Pittsburgh with him.

The Princess was obliged to tie up yesterday afternoon on account of the ice. The owners of the Princess stated yesterday that it was very doubtful whether they would bring her out to-day for the same reason. The Raleigh telegraphed yesterday that she was not coming out from Pittsburgh until the heavy ice had run out.

The Smoky City sank a loaded coal boat at Baker's Island on Wednesday evening; it is said to be lying directly in the channel, and it will be in the way. However, the Maggie, with her tow, passed by soon after the accident without having sustained any damage. Other boats going down with loads, it was feared, would have trouble in getting past the sunken boat.

Provided the ice does not compel the St. Lawrence to lay up at Pittsburgh she will pass down for Cincinnati to-morrow morning. The St. Lawrence is too well known in the upper Ohio trade to stand in need of recommendation. Captain Kiker is in command and Mr. List and Lacy do the honors in the office. The attention of shippers and the public generally, is called to her card.

Capt. Charles Muhlenberg writes that the Andes excursion to the New Orleans Exposition now seems to be a certainty, as the revenue number of passengers is almost sure to be made up. A plan of the steamers' cabin and staterooms can be found at Booth's boat store, and those intending to go are requested to call and select their staterooms before the 23d inst. The steamer will leave on the 23d.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 19.—The Commercial Gazette's Huntingdon, Pa., special says: A terrible accident occurred on the Huntingdon & Broad Top road to-night, one mile south of this city, to a party of trackmen, who were returning from work to their homes. William Clark, foreman of the gang, Russell Rohland and Wm. Vanorman, obtained the use of a hand car for the purpose of running to their homes in McConnellstown, five miles from here. They had not proceeded over a few hundred yards when a shifting engine with twenty-four loaded cars ran into their hand car, smashing it into splinters and fatally injuring two of the party, Clark and Rohland, while Vanorman escaped unhurt.

HUSHELS OF BONES

Found in the Loft of a New York House. An Unsolved Mystery.

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—An anonymous correspondent wrote to the Sanitary headquarters that there was a small graveyard in the loft of a house, No. 11 West Third street. Heaps of mouldering human skulls and bones had been there for years, and no one knew anything about them.

The writer asks the authorities to find out how they got there. Investigation revealed the story to be true, and the matter was turned over to the police. A visit to the loft showed the place to be filled with skeletons and human bones in all stages of mouldiness. All sorts of rumors are afloat regarding the manner in which the bones came into the loft, but none can be traced to any reliable source. The bones were sent to the morgue, and the police are endeavoring to clear away the mystery surrounding them.

The London Bridge Explosion.

DUBLIN, Dec. 19.—The Irishman, a newspaper, alleges that the British government sent a woman to Ireland with the authority to offer a contribution of £200 toward the cost of a launch to be used on the Thames for throwing bombs at the Parliament building. The paper connects this story with the launch seen near the London bridge shortly before the explosion.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—An Irish laborer writes to the Times as one result of the explosion that three hundred Irish water-side laborers will be thrown out of employment. The laborer, he says, will be afraid to engage Irishmen.

The temper of the conferees of each house on the naval bill appears to be to sustain the conference, and it seems unlikely that the bill will be reached before the holiday recess. In this case the Navy will be without funds the first of January.

Representative McAdoo, of New Jersey, introduced a Joint Resolution providing for an appropriation of $250,000 to be distributed by the Secretary of the Treasury and expended under his direction by the proper local authorities of New York City, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Hoboken, to prevent by proper quarantine and sanitary measure the entrance of cholera in this country, and prevent its spread if it should take a foothold.

At a meeting of the House Committee on Appropriations yesterday Representative Hancock was directed to report two amendments to the Pension Appropriation bill. The first provides that the number of pension agents be reduced from eighteen to twelve, and their maximum compensation fixed at $4,000 annually. The second limits the fee for the examining surgeon to five dollars for the first five cases and one dollar for each additional.

MOUNDSVILLE MATTERS.

The Klonan Mill to be Sold in the Near Future—New Notes.

The thermometer registered 10° below zero yesterday morning.

Two of the Franklin district schools are closed on account of the prevalence of measles in that section of the county.

Miss Lizzie Allman, daughter of G. W. Allman, Esq., of Franklin district, died of consumption Wednesday last, and was buried yesterday.

Judge Jacobs will hold a special term of the Circuit Court for this county, commencing Monday next. The term will be devoted principally to county road matters.

Deputy Sheriff Mathews has returned from a tax collecting trip through the southern portion of the county, where he was unusually successful in raking in the debts.

The project of building glass works here is again being agitated. A gentleman of the Second ward said yesterday that he was willing and ready at any time to invest $5,000 in such an enterprise.

The Klonan Iron Works here will be advertised for sale soon by Hon. Daniel Lamb, of Wheeling, trustee for the bondholders. The mill has been idle for a long time now, and the expense of watching and insuring, is of course heavy.

Our county jail only has two inmates at present. George O'Brien, the ex-convict awaiting trial, charged with stealing a lot of carpenter tools and harness from Mr. Anguish, of Rowman, and the young man serving a four months sentence for going through Mr. Booth's store in Franklin district.
